

Source:

Institutional Communication Office

With a journey through history after the triumph of the Revolution, led by our undefeated Commander in Chief Fidel Castro Ruz, he started the special morning of the Ministry of Communications, commemorating the 61st anniversary of the triumph of the Cuban Revolution.

Faithful to the revolutionary principles, the workers of the Ministry of Communications, arrive at this 61st Anniversary immersed in a process that ratifies the historical continuity between the generations that star in it and recognize the unconditionality and fidelity of those who bequeathed us a nation that worships the freedom, justice and full dignity of man.

Those present enjoyed cultural moments such as: the interpretation of the bolero “La Lupe”, composed by Commander Juan Almeida Bosque; in the voice of the young Miguel Eduardo Zequeira, a student of the Higher Institute of Art. “Hoy mi Habana”, performed by the Contemporary Dance Duo of the Superior Institute of Art. The Saudade Duo, graduated from the Higher Institute of Art and recently awarded in the Adolfo Guzmán Contest, who will interpret the songs "Believe Me", "Longina" and "Ferminia".

The words, by fellow Ebert Silva, Secretary of the PCC Committee, emphasized the commitment of communicators to continue strengthening and being worthy continuators of the construction of our Revolution: “Today, next to the arrival of its 61st anniversary, our collective, headed by its highlights Young man, GO FOR MORE: he is engaged in the development of the computerization of the Society and Information and Communication Technologies and in the confrontation, with presence and content in social networks, dismantling falsehoods and spreading the grandiose work of our sacred cause. The guidelines, which are important guidelines for the whole society, contained in the keynote speech delivered by our president Miguel Díaz-Canel Bermúdez at the closing of the Second Regular Session of the ANPP corresponding to this year, will be very useful to fulfill the proposed missions. All of them are aimed not only at raising the quality of life of our heroic people and facilitating the construction of the prosperous and sustainable socialism that we have proposed, but that they cover other spheres, including those related to the improvement of society and the behavior of the individuals that build it and integrate it ”.

Yanet Toledo Ruiz, General Secretary of the Trade Union Bureau told the workers: “On behalf of the union bureau, urge them to continue fulfilling our work as workers, together with the administration and the party as a large group, supporting our Revolution by being active in social networks showing the world our achievements and denying any false that is invented, actively participating in the process of computerization of society and in every task that the Revolution demands of us. ”

Very special for all was the projection of an audiovisual where a representation of workers of the organization expressed the feeling of the communicators for the historical moment that we live and the desires to continue united driving the tasks with discipline, with control of the resources, for the development and the prosperity of the country.

Alba Estevanez, a member of the Secretariat of the National Union of Communications, Computer and Electronics Workers transmitted the congratulations to the communicators and invited them to participate in the Second Conference under the motto: Communicators for a developing society.

At the close of the morning, the Minister of Communications, Jorge Luis Perdomo Di-Lella, addressed the workers and made a brief summary of the moments lived by the country during the year 2019 and the work done by the Communications system in this beautiful and difficult year and the main projections for the coming 2020.

The Minister congratulated all the Communications workers and urged to work with more quality and dedication for the people of Cuba.

---