On April 13, Jorge Luis Perdomo Di-Lella, minister of Communications, along with Ruben Remigio Ferro, president of the People's Supreme Tribunal, witnessed a trial at the Provincial Tribunal of Havana, which took place through video-conference with the goal of keeping on with the strengthening of e-Government in the Cuban judiciary system to the benefit of citizens and institutions.

During the visit to the Provincial Tribunal of Havana, the Minister of Communications was able to verify how prioritized is the computerization of processes and services in the tribunals system and he also expressed his support for that program.

The experiences of the System of the People's Tribunals in the use of ICTs to benefit citizens are positive and encouraging and they will still be improved with the help of the Communications Ministry so that we are able to realize the ideas of Martí when he said that we should "regard justice as we regard the highest of palm trees."

On his official twitter account, Ruben Remigio Ferro, president of the People's Supreme Tribunal of Cuba said: "I accompanied the Minister of Communications @JorgeLuisPerd20 during his visit to the seat of the People's Provincial Tribunal of Havana to witness the use of technology in the judicial sector. Interesting experiences in favor of the services to the population!!! #CubaInformatiza"

The head of the Communications Ministry, Jorge Luis Perdomo Di-Lella, wrote about the visit on his Twitter account as well: "The computerization of the judicial system of #Cuba has a positive impact on institutions and citizens. Moving forward in a more encompassing way is part of Electronic Government." #CubaViva #8voCongresoPCC #CubaInformatiza
