The Minister of Communications, Mayra Arevich Marín, from her official Twitter account congratulated Joven Club workers on behalf of the communications sector: "The apple of the Revolution's eye in computer science are the Joven Clubs." #Fidel. Congratulations to the workers of @JovenClub2 on their #Aniversario35. It is vital to count on you in the daily contribution to digital transformation and the safe use of ICTs. #JovenClubTeConecta.

For his part the Deputy Prime Minister of Cuba, Jorge Luis Perdomo Di-Lella through his personal profile on Twitter wrote: Today marks 35 years #JovenClub, an idea of #Fidel to bring informatization to communities. In 644 sites children and young people attend different development projects, video games, courses, and others Congratulations to its workers #35AniversarioJovenClub #Cuba #CubaInformatiza.

The Deputy Minister of Communications, Griselda Reyes León, from her personal Facebook account expressed: Happy 35th anniversary of our Computer Science and Electronics Joven Club. They were born with just 32 facilities, today they are more than 600 and reach the most intricate rural areas. They have and contribute to create vocation, acquire knowledge and train skills in children, youth and adults. As our Comandante En Jefe said, just like the #RevolucionCubana, they will never let the people down and will always be La Computadora De La Familia Cubana. #JovenClubConnectsYou.

Once again, thank you #FidelCastro.

Joven Club de Computación y Electrónica, arose on September 8, 1987, on the initiative of Commander in Chief Fidel Castro Ruz, with the objective of contributing to the socialization and informatization of Cuban society.
